The Flood in the Lower Mississippl: A correspondent of the St. Louis Republicus gives the following interesting details of the Favages of the flood between New Orleans and Cairo: The prospects of the augur planters above the crevasse, in the vicinity of New Orleans, are far below an average. The seepage water has done immense damage all the way up to Natches. The river is rising again rapidly at Natches, at which place it is two inches above any rise since 1860. At Modney it is in the sewers on Main street, and rose two inches Friday night. The whole of Tousis parish is in imminent danger. As yet no great dunings is done only in the upper part. The town of Grand Gulf is covered, and the occupants. basily engaged in moving to second floors. The plantations of Colonel Coffee, Hamilton, and Pea-son, were being overflowed by the breaks in the leves on Saturday. In the vicinity of Peint Pleas ant the fields were covered in many parts by seepage. At Ashwood, a few miles above the point, the whole forces of the country were engaged to prevent the giving way of the levee. If they fall, all of Tensos parish will be destroyed.

At Hurricane island, above Ashwood (Davis' landlog), the water is up to the mark of 1850. An immense quantity of water was pouring over Mr. Davis' plantation, as well as many others, destroying everything in its way. The plantation of Joshus James, twenty-six miles below Vinksburg, in half covered with seepage water. The swells from steamers leap over the levee on both sides of the effects of the water. This is one of the most destructive breaks in the Mississippi river Some of the finest and larges: plantations in the whole State are completely overflowed, and made queless for the present. Above and below Napoleon, for many miles, the entire country is flooded m both sides of the river. Scaffolds have been built, on which stock of every kind is herded in a perishable condition. Hundreds of cattle, horses, &c., can be seen bunched in some spot under water, but a little more elevated than the surrounding land, in the most pitiable condition, the stronger once forcing the weaker into the wide waste of waters which is fast gathering about them, and which will, ere this mighty flood subsides, give them as food for the fishes.
